Suggested Summer Math

Just as it is important for children to continue reading during the summer, it is also important for them to continue practicing mathematics. Please refer to this list for some games, puzzles, and other challenges that we hope your children will find interesting and fun. Practicing frequently for short periods of time throughout the summer will help to keep it fun and keep your children's math skills sharp to ensure they are ready for next year!

Rising 1st and 2nd Grade

Games & Puzzles: Blokus, Castle Logix, Hi Ho! Cherry-O, Mental Blox, Chutes and Ladders, Uno, Crazy Eights, and other card games by JoAnna Cole (directions for games that can be played with a deck of regular cards).

Reference Books: Pretend Soup by Mollie Katzen (age-appropriate cookbook).

Rising 2nd graders can practice addition or subtraction fact combinations (through the twelves) by using flash cards, index cards, or by playing creative games with cards, dominoes or dice. Go Fish and memory card games are great for learning doubles. Students can match up doubles and practice adding the totals together. "Rat-a-Tat-Cat" and "Zeus on the Loose" are also a couple favorites from Late Gates!

Rising 3rd into 5th Grade

Games & Puzzles: Those listed above as well as Backgammon, Black Jack, Chess, Farkle, Ken-Ken, Sudoku, and Yahtzee.

Around the House: Use recipes to cook, make change with U.S. coins, measure items using metric and US tools, read analogue clocks, practice multiplication combinations.

Reference Books: Honest Pretzels by Mollie Katzen (age-appropriate cookbook), Schoolhouse Rock Multiplication (search on itunes or YouTube).

Rising 3rd graders should memorize addition and subtraction combinations through the twelves using games and flashcards.

Rising 4th graders should memorize addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division combinations through the twelves using games and flash cards.

Rising 6th into 8th Grade

Games & Puzzles: See those listed above.

Workbooks: Summer Skills Sharpener, available online at: www.summersolutions.net (Rising 6th: Intermediate A; Rising 7th: Intermediate B; Rising 8th: Pre-Algebra).
